The Daily Press, HONGKONG, FEBRUARY 9TH, 1887.

The Daily Press published in another column is decidedly more reassuring than most of the recent messages sent out, and encourages the hope that the peace of Europe will not be broken, at least for the present. We also hear that Consuls are very firm, and it is at the same time satisfactory to note that the pannic of the Continental Powers never appears to have extended to the London Stock Exchange.
A more sanguine view of the situation must have been taken in the United Kingdom, and more especially it must have been considered unlikely that war would break out in the Balkan Peninsula. The general desire in Europe is, we believe, for the maintenance of peace, and while this lasts more rumours or even hostile utterances will not suffice to disturb it. Unfortunately, however, the position generally is threatening, and, so long as this is the case, so long will public confidence continue to waver. The following sentences from the Spectator are deserving of attention as indicating the views entertained by some sober minded if rather pessimistic persons in England:

“ The official court at the Police Court which requires their attendance they invariably take a seat by the side of the magistrate. In this they are strictly within their rights, but the practice is attended with some inconvenience and ought, we think, to be discontinued. If Mr. A., a merchant and a Justice of the Peace, had occasion to prosecute his co-defendants for embezzlement it would be considered decidedly unusual for him to sit as a magistrate. He is thus entitled to wear a crown and a badge on his arm. In addition to that he is the winner of a very handsome cup presented by Major General Sir G. P. Evelyn for the two best trials of the year. The trial of Mr. A. was decided in favor of the defendant, and finished second with a total of 197 points.

Yesterday morning the members of the Indian Contingent of the Police Force were paraded before the Governor of Hongkong, Sir George Stewart, to witness the presentation of a Bullion Medal and the sum of $25 to exemplify a creditable service considering the nature of the competition, and something like 50 more than entitles him to rank as a marksman. He
